2020 FIA WORLD RALLY
CHAMPIONSHIP

ORGANISED BY ESTONIAN
AUTOSPORT EVENTS MTÜ

10th RUNNING
(FIRST TIME AS A WRC ROUND)

MICHELIN AND RALLY ESTONIA

Group Michelin tyres have won Rally Estonia seven times since 2010

The 2018 and 2019 events were won by Ott Tänak in a Michelin LTX Force-equipped Toyota Yaris WRC

Rally Estonia's fast stages are similar to those of Rally Finland

The 2020 Rally Estonia will see Michelin target its 29th different WRC rally success

GRIP AND FEEDBACK FROM THE TYRES ARE LIKELY TO PLAY A BIG ROLE

"This rally is new to the WRC calendar but we know it quite well already because it has been a popular fixture to prepare for Rally Finland in recent years. Because of the current circumstances, it is shorter than we are accustomed to in the WRC, with only 230 competitive kilometres over two days. Its smooth, fast gravel stages feature numerous crests that don't leave much room for error, so grip and feedback from the tyres are likely to play a big role. There is a little uncertainty concerning the weather because Rally Estonia's usual date-slot is mid-July. Along with the teams, we have nominated our medium compound for the event because of its versatility, with the hard compound as the alternative in case we get hot weather."

MICHELIN STATISTIC

Estonia is the 33rd country to host a round of the FIA World Rally Championship. Michelin has won in 24 different countries since the WRC's creation in 1973.

RALLY ESTONIA

Rally Estonia was organised for the first time in 2010 by former co-driver Silver Kütte and former driver Urmo Aava

The inaugural Rally Estonia was won by Markko Märtin, ahead of Ott Tänak, both on Group Michelin tyres

In 2014, Rally Estonia became a round of the FIA European Rally Championship (ERC)

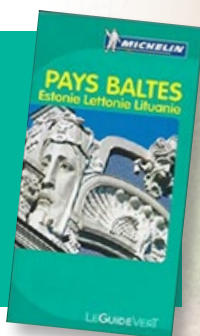

Numerous WRC regulars have contested Rally Estonia over the years as preparation for Rally Finland

Two Estonian drivers – Markko Märtin and Ott Tänak – have won WRC rounds. They total 17 victories between them (same score as Germany and Norway)

In 2019, Ott Tänak became the first Estonian to win a world title in motorsport
